BACKGROUND INFORMATION

PUBLIC LAW | HUMAN RIGHTS | LEGAL ACTION

The Public Interest Law Centre (PILC) was initially set up in 2016 as a project of Lambeth Law Centre, starting by representing core participants in the Undercover Policing Inquiry (UCPI). As Lambeth Law Centre became insolvent in July 2019, PILC incorporated as a company limited by guarantee and started to act as an agent of Camden Community Law Centre (CCLC) for Legal Aid purposes. This hosting arrangement will continue until a new tender is advertised by the Legal Aid Agency, which we anticipate to be in the summer of 2023. In November 2020, PILC became registered as a Charitable Incorporated Organisation in England and Wales (No: 1192355).

Mission

PILC exists to challenge systemic injustice. We do this by holding government and public bodies to account and promoting access to justice for dispossessed and excluded groups. PILC specialises in:

- Legal Representation in public law, claims against public authorities and public inquiries
- Strategic Litigation
- Legal Education
- Research & Advocacy

We represent individuals and communities who have been unfairly or unlawfully treated by public institutions. We use the law creatively and assertively through strategic litigation. We work closely with grassroots groups, campaigners and frontline organisations.

Why PILC exists

In the last 10 years, government has enacted a politics of austerity and passed legislation to create a hostile environment for migrants with enormous consequences for individuals and marginalised communities who were already at the bottom of the economic and social scale or on the margins of citizenship. Welfare provision has been drastically reduced whilst government departments operate as gatekeepers, a well-documented practice that has seen vulnerable people die after being told they were 'fit for work'. Immigration law continues to grow in complexity and many vulnerable people have borne the brunt of a brutal immigration system, whether they were British black people from the Windrush generation or EU homeless people who had fallen on hard times. Austerity has also forced Local Authorities – who derive much of their budgets from central government - into making substantial budgetary cuts to local services, from social care to housing provision via libraries and youth centres. They have also sold public land and other community assets to compensate and raise necessary funds.

Our Approach

PILC promotes a rights-based approach that does not limit itself to defending ever more restricted rights. Instead it seeks to expand fundamental rights for those who struggle to live with dignity and bring about wider social change. PILC works in partnership with grassroots groups and frontline organisations across various sectors through a 'Legal Hub' model that includes the following activities:

- Provision of 2nd-tier advice & complex casework
- Capacity building by providing training and advocacy tools to improve quality of advice work
- Research that includes problem-identifying sessions with partners by reviewing trends and common issues in casework; monitoring policy developments; feeding into legal action
- Strategic litigation, challenging unlawful policies and practices at local and national levels
- Strategic Communications – influencing at local and regional level, publicising legal successes and working with sector partners to ensure their implementation, amplifying rights-based methodologies via traditional and social media

Achievements

Through its litigation work, PILC has enabled settled migrants to access student finance (2018), prevented the sale of Southall Town Hall, an iconic building used by community groups (2018), forced the Home Office to provide destitute migrants on immigration bail a way to be supported (2019), ended Lambeth Council's deceitful housing scheme that pushed homeless families out of borough (2020), compelled government to release £76 million ring-fenced funding to the Violence Against Women & Girls sector during C-19 first lockdown (2020) and successfully challenged LB Camden's use of mixed-gender accommodation for women escaping domestic abuse (2021). Most recently, PILC represented Ricky Tomlinson and Arthur Murray (members of the Shrewsbury 24) in their Court of Appeal case, which saw their 47-year old convictions quashed.

PILC acted on behalf of campaigners challenging the low number of social housing being provided as part of the regeneration of the Elephant & Castle shopping centre. Although the case was lost in the Court of Appeal, it was part of a wider campaign that secured valuable concessions for those adversely effected and supported campaigners in the local area.

PILC continues to act on behalf of RAMFEL against the Home Office in regards to its latest amendment to the Immigration Rules, which makes 'rough sleeping' a ground to refuse or cancel someone's right to remain in the UK.

PILC also represents a number of individuals and groups in the Undercover Policing Inquiry, including a former Labour MP, anti-racist campaigners, leaders of the Stop the War coalition and the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament.

Our People

PILC is co-led by Jean Demars (Director) who oversees strategic, operational and financial management and Paul Heron (Senior Solicitor) who oversees legal matters, which includes casework management, litigation strategy and Legal Aid contract management. He is further supported by Helen Mowatt (Supervising Solicitor) and Dermot Morrow (Operations Manager) who complete the management team.

PILC currently employs ten staff with a number of volunteers supporting our core work and projects.

With the recruitment of a new Public Law Solicitor we aim to strengthen and broaden the reach of our litigation team.

Our Trustees

The Law Centre's Trustees are Suzanne Muna (Chair), Gold Miller (Treasurer), Niall Mulholland (Secretary), Lou Crisfield, Kelly Miller, Jacqueline Parkes, Eric Segal and Ayesha Taylor. Our board possess a broad range of skills, knowledge and experience in the trade union movement, legal aid, housing and homelessness, community work & campaigning, and the not-for-profit sector.

Review of staff terms & conditions

At the time of this advertisement, the Law Centre is consulting with staff to review its contractual terms & conditions and staff benefits. The review is purposed to improving rather than diminishing the terms currently on offer wherever possible, in a way that is both sustainable and in line with PILC's reserves policy. The review is expected to conclude by the summer of 2022 and any changes to terms, conditions and staff benefits will be backdated to the post-holder's start date.

Lexcel accreditation

PILC attained our legal quality mark accreditation in December 2021. For the time being and for Legal Aid purposes we continue to operate as an agent of Camden Community Law Centre through which we have access to Public Law and Claims against Public Authorities contracts. We expect to tender for a LAA contract in Public Law in our own right when the next round of tenders open in 2023.

Registrations and memberships

PILC is registered with the Solicitors Regulation Authority and the Law Society. We are also a member of the Law Centres Network, AdviceUK and the Legal Aid Practitioners Group.

Introduction

PILC exists to challenge systemic injustice. We do this by holding government and public bodies to account and promoting access to justice for dispossessed and excluded groups. We work through legal representation, strategic litigation, research & advocacy and legal education.

The post holder will use public law and strategic litigation to support the work of grassroots groups and tenants & residents' associations campaigning against gentrification. The project will benefit from your knowledge and experience of using broad public law principles and judicial review to challenge gentrification.

The post-holder will receive the support necessary to deliver the project's objectives, including developing their existing public law experience, as well as training in planning and environmental law.

The main issue we are seeking to address is the loss of social housing that increases every year through the sale of public land, the demolition of council housing and the lack of new social housing developments, which has resulted in working-class populations being moved out of London. We are also seeking to address the negative environmental impact inherent to profit-driven private developments such as letting estates go into disrepair, demolishing existing estates and building anew (often with associated loss of social housing). Recent trends include infill of 'affordable' housing on green spaces in already densely-populated estates. It is hoped that as the post develops it may also explore the deterioration of the environment in London and bring cutting edge litigation in this developing field of law.

You will develop existing cases concerning working class communities fighting for their estates in North, South and East London.

The post-holder will manage all aspects of litigation, carrying their own caseload and be responsible for facilitating billing. They will be supported by PILC's experienced litigation team, and directly, from the support of a Paralegal experienced in anti-gentrification issues and with existing links to a number of ongoing campaigns.

Main Responsibilities

- Conduct legal casework in Public Law that supports communities fighting against gentrification
- Ensure sustainability of casework by adhering to financial targets and billing promptly
- Develop excellent relationships with PILC's beneficiaries and partners
- Identify public law issues and develop strategic litigation in line with PILC's mission.

Specific duties include:

- Analyse and advise on strategy, tactics, and how best to achieve the most successful outcome for each client according to the particular circumstances of their case
- Enable clients to make informed decisions based on advice on legal and other appropriate considerations e.g. costs, funding and risks of litigation
- Ensure the timely and effective deployment of others involved in the matter e.g. expert witnesses, counsel, cost draftsmen
- Monitor all aspects of the case on behalf of the client and advise on whether subsequent developments affect views previously expressed
- Be aware of deadlines in all cases and adhere to time limits, to take necessary steps to protect the client's position
- Endeavour, where appropriate, to achieve settlement pre-litigation; otherwise to conduct litigation through to trial or earlier settlement and to deal with post trial/settlement considerations such as costs and enforcement proceedings, and to consider whether any decision should be appealed

- Comply with the Solicitors Regulation Authority's standards of professional conduct and ethics and, in particular, with the strict requirement of confidentiality of client's affairs, at all times.

Partnership and capacity building

- Maintain and develop excellent relationships with grassroots groups campaigning against gentrification to enable effective joint working
